ESMA SRR1 Risk Rating

Fund performance

The Fund delivered strong performance in January predominantly driven by its underlying dividend paying equities. The Fund’s Industrial equity exposures were a significant source of strength. Relatively recent portfolio addition, Howmet Aerospace (+15%) and French industrial, Safran (+13%), were notable outperformers in January. These businesses predominantly provide engines and components to the aerospace sector, benefiting from underlying structural growth tailwinds. Elsewhere, the Fund’s investment grade fixed income holdings also positively contributed to returns, with corporate bond holdings outperforming European government bonds. The Fund’s downside protection strategy (index put options) was a modest drag in the month.

Market commentary

January was a strong month across multiple asset classes, with equities, bonds and commodities finishing higher. The MSCI World rose by 3.1% in euro terms. Communication Services and Financials outperformed, rising by 8.7% and 6.5% respectively. Technology stocks were a notable laggard, declining by 1.5%. It's uncharacteristic underperformance stemmed from the news that China's DeepSeek had developed an AI model, with significantly lower cost and infrastructure requirements. The month ended with several of the major US large cap's reporting Q4 earnings, following strong results from the banks. Elsewhere, the ECB diverged from the Fed, with the former cutting interest rates, while the latter kept policy unchanged. Despite this, US bonds outperformed their European counterparts. Geopolitical and fiscal policy uncertainty continued to benefit the price of gold, which rose by nearly 7%.
